

Princess Bride: Disney's New Wedding Gowns

Cinderella and her regal friends are moving into the bridal business, with a line of wedding dresses and accessories aimed at brides with fairy-tale aspirations. Disney has teamed up with couture bridal designer Kirstie Kelly to transform blushing brides into their favorite princesses, complete with billowing gowns and crystal tiaras. (See related article .)

Ariel, from "The Little Mermaid," has a "sultry allure" and is "comfortable showing her body," says Ms. Kelly.

The dress for Aurora, from "Sleeping Beauty," features an elegant A-line skirt with pearl-like beads and crystals at the hem.

The dress for Belle, from "Beauty and the Beast," has "stylish sophistication," according to Ms. Kelly, and comes in taffeta and features her signature roses.

As Ms. Kelly sees it, Cinderella is "classic glamour"—her dresses come in high-shine satin with ball-gown skirts and make generous use of silver embroidery and crystals.

Jasmine, from "Aladdin," is "bohemian chic," and her dresses are big on sheath and lace.

Snow White's look is dubbed "sweet elegance."
